PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

THIS WORK was commenced in November, 1863, the computation of the author then being that it could be comprised in one thousand four hundred pages, and would occupy two years. Many unbooked for obstructions, chiefly of a typographical nature, materially retarded the progress of the work in the first instance, and these being overcome, the author discovered that he had underestimated the extent and the importance of the vast task he had undertaken, and that it would occupy fully double the time and space which he had at the outset computed.

The publication of a work of such magnitude, and presenting so many and such varied obstacles, seldom falls to the limited resources of one single individual, as occurs in this case. The first part of the work is now issued, partly at the request of the author and partly to afford the Foreign Community of China an opportunity of extending that assistance to the publisher, which under the circumstances is usually so freely accorded.

The Price of the book complete will be $40, and it will be published in four parts at $7.50 each. But this objection presents itself to the sale of the parts separately, should the purchaser of one or more parts not take the others, a number of incomplete and consequently valueless, copies will be left on the publisher's hands. To remedy this objection, in consideration of the circumstances already alluded to, it is hoped that those who see fit to patronize the undertaking by purchasing the first part, will not object to signing an engagement to take the remaining parts as they appear, or should they prefer it, to pay for the entire work in advance.

The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, MARCH 4, 1867.

OUR readers will observe an announcement of a theatrical entertainment to be given at the Lusitanian Theatre to-morrow evening, for the benefit of the Reformatory, West Point. The performance is undertaken gratuitously by Signor Pompei, and a corps of juvenile Portuguese amateurs, who have gained some celebrity during the winter in a series of private performances. Whatever may be the attraction which the entertainment will present, the utmost praise must be accorded the performers on the ground of philanthropy. We know of no charitable institution in China which presents such strong claims on Christian consideration as the Reformatory at West Point. A case occurred at the Magistrates' court a few days ago, which will fully carry out the illustration which we are about to attempt. A deported thief was brought before the bench for having been found again in the colony. The excuse alleged by the prisoner was that he had not the means to enable him to leave The Magistrate accepted the defence and ordered means to be provided. But let our readers suppose the case of a Chinese culprit being released after having performed his term of penal servitude! Where is he to procure his first meal of rice, but from his old comrades in crime? If such be the situation, the wretch has simply to starve or steal, and forms a scandal upon Christianity as well as an evergreen in the ranks of crime. But let him have the Reformatory to fall back upon and there is a strong chance of his being reclaimed, and becoming a true emblem of the presence of our boasted religion. We therefore strongly advocate the cause of the institution, and, touching this performance for its benefit, having assured ourselves that every farthing earned will be fully accounted for, we trust our readers will co-operate in the furtherance of so commendable an enterprise, and will accord their presence and support to the best of their convenience.

MESSRS. JARDINE, MATHESON & Co. have just received a steam fire engine of the latest London model. It is a singularly simple, compact, and effective article, and with the exception of the hose, could easily be embraced in a "one horse chaise." It feeds itself, and throws out two heavy jets a surprising distance. It seems to us, if four such engines were rendered available, and if the Royal Artillery were assigned the duties of a fire brigade, that the colony would possess ample protection against fire. The engines should all be exactly similar, so that break-downs might be amply provided for, and an engineer should be appointed to keep them in working order. Two of these engines, in addition to that which Messrs. JARDINE have, might be provided at the expense of other Insurance Offices, and the fourth at the expense of the Government. Any one who witnessed the trial at East Point on Friday, must be convinced that the days of the old fire engine have gone by. It is a mistake to suppose that any delay should occur with these new engines because of the time required to get up steam. On the first alarm the fires are lighted, and the steam is up, long before the engine can reach the scene of calamity.

THE Corinthian Yacht Race, announced for Saturday and postponed, owing to the arrival of the French mail, until to-day, does not appear to claim the attention which it merits. The course is fixed from the Fort William round Cow-a-chow (beyond Green Island) through the harbor, round the rocks in the Ly-ee-moon, and back to the Fort William. Three boats only are entered—namely, the Wave, the Cynthia, and the Mayflower. The course is well selected, and we hope the race will be a well contested one. [Since the above was written the race has been postponed, as our readers will observe in our advertising columns.]

WE have good reason to doubt the statements which have been made relative to the confirmation of the Stamp Act by the Home Government. We believe the fact to be, that the Secretary of State for the Colonies has granted Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL authority to give the Stamp Act the form of law in any shape His Excellency may please, but at the same time throwing the whole onus of responsibility on Sir RICHARD's shoulders. To saddle the GOVERNOR more effectually with this, Lord CARNARVON has obtained for Sir RICHARD the authority to waive, temporarily no doubt, the payment of the military contribution. The meaning probably is to suggest a modification of the Act out of respect to the remonstrance of the rate payers, and if Sir RICHARD will confine the impost to lawyers' offices, and to "time bargains," he will most probably solve the difficulty. In the meantime it cannot be expected that a man of such exalted rank will enlighten such benighted creatures as the community of this colony, on a subject which merely affects their pockets.

[Since the above was written we find the announcement in the Gazette in the ordinary form of the confirmation of the Stamp Act but we are in the dark as to when it is to come in force. This announcement is not at all inconsistent with what is above written,—it simply proves that the GOVERNOR is determined to assume the responsibility of enforcing his detestable hobby. What the value of his responsibility is, let the career of his predecessor determine. We trust the community will continue to maintain their rights, by every legitimate and becoming means,—the question should not be allowed to sleep.]

A CASE of kidnapping extraordinary was lately perpetrated under legal disguise in this colony, which, even opposed as we are to the Havana coolie trade, we feel it our duty to denounce. Mr. ARMERO, a large Cuba coolie dealer chartered a Prussian bark called the Lorelei to convey victims from Macao to Havana, but finding such employment to be contrary to the rules which regulate the navigation of Prussian ships, he very properly declined to carry out the charter party.

The master of the Lorelei seems to have made up his mind to enter the traffic with a will, so he waited quietly until Mr. ARMERO visited this colony, when he had him kidnapped under a writ of capias ad respondendum (which means the body to answer) laying the damages at $40,000.

Mr. ARMERO at once tendered good and sufficient bail to await the result of the litigation on the claim, but the master of the Lorelei had evidently been studying the tactics of the Count BISMARK, for he retained a most athletic limb of the law, who maintained, by some singular hocus pocus arising from a conflict of the law of England with the ordinances of Hongkong, that the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court had not the power to release Mr. ARMERO on bail!

We do not say that $40,000 is an excessive compensation for the lost services of such a splendid craft as the Lorelei may be imagined to be, even enhanced by the refulgent brilliance of the Prussian flag. Nor do we say that the object of the aspiring coolie skipper was to incarcerate Mr. ARMERO until a goodly squeeze could be forced out of him—but we do say that such proceedings cast upon this colony a most unenviable notoriety, and that we trust in this case justice may not be blinked for the exercise of extortion.

At the same time we hope the circumstance will afford Mr. ARMERO a lesson on the value of personal liberty, and on the abuses to which the law of contracts may be made applicable.

A serious affair took place at about one o'clock this morning between a party of thieves and the police. It appears that a band of about fifty en attacked the premises of Mr. J. Butcher, livery stable keeper, during the absence of the proprietor in Macao; they were armed with muskets, revolvers, and sink pots, and report says they beat off the police. A European living in the house was very severely wounded, and the thieves made good their escape with a quantity of property.

Police Intelligence, March 2nd.

BEFORE N. R. MASON ESQ.

ALLEGED ATTEMPT TO STEAL A BOAT.

Herman Fischer, seaman unemployed, was charged with attempting to steal a boat, the property of Messrs. Dirode, Frères.

Leung-achai, boatman to Messrs. Dirode Frères stated that this morning while going down to the boat which was lying at the Government Wharf, when at a little distance off, he saw prisoner deliberately jump into the boat, let go the painter and shove off, witness hailed him and he came back, then call a constable and gave him in charge.

P. C. 118 deposed to seeing prisoner in the boat and arresting him there by request of previous witness.

In defence prisoner said that he saw the boat adrift and recalled her up to the Government Wharf for the purpose of making her fast, prosecutor came down and he (prisoner) asked if the boat belonged to him but not being able to speak English could not make him understand, prosecutor called out "billy loong" and a constable came up and arrested him.

A witness named Richard Gorman, staying at Bailey's boarding house, was called, who deposed that prisoner had been living in the boarding house for the last fortnight, he was considered a quiet man and bore a good character from the vessel he had left.

In spite of this however prisoner was considered to have been on board the boat for an unlawful purpose and was fined $10, or to be imprisoned for fourteen days.

A DOUBTFUL CASE OF IDENTITY.

Ow-acheong, and Lum-lune, were charged with being in unlawful possession of a quilt the property of a brickmyer named Yin-ating, residing at West Point.

Prosecutor stated that about three days ago he missed a quilt which had been hanging outside his door for the purpose of being aired, this morning while walking in West Street, he saw the first prisoner carrying the article in question in his hand and asked him where he had obtained it, he replied that a friend had given it to him to pawn, prosecutor claimed it as his property and demanded that it should be given up, the first prisoner refused to accede to this demand and a constable who happened to pass by, took him in charge.

Sergeant Driscoll, was walking in West street Tai-pin-chun early this morning when he saw a struggle between prosecutor and the first prisoner, the former gave the latter in his custody on charge of stealing the quilt now in court, this man said he could point out the person who gave him the quilt to pawn, but after a protracted ramble through Tai-pin-shan they failed to find him, however, on arriving at the charge room they found him comfortably seated there he having apparently come of his own accord.

The first prisoner stated that the second gave him the quilt to pawn and the second said that it was his own property; on hearing this the magistrate ordered the second prisoner to be taken out of the dock and reserved him as a witness.

Lum-lune, late the second prisoner, on being put into the witness box stated that the quilt now in court was his own property and had been so for the last two years, he could identify it by three stains; (and on being opened surely enough the stains appeared) he had owed the second prisoner some money for a considerable period and on being pressed for payment this morning gave first prisoner the quilt to pawn for the amount due, witness soon afterwards heard that the prosecutor was in custody and went to the station to speak in his behalf, when he himself was also included in the charge.

The magistrate here adjourned the case until Tuesday next the 5th instant in order to obtain more satisfactory evidence.

ARREST.

JACOB OREGON, a coloured gentleman, considerably the worse for liquor, who called himself a watchman to MESSRS. Walker & Co's godowns at Wanchi, was charged with assaulting Ho-apew a shopman residing in Wanchi.

It appeared that as Ho-apew was walking in Queen's Road Wanchi this morning he noticed a crowd of people gathered round the chapel; on approaching he saw the prisoner banting his son, a little boy of fourteen years of age; with a large stick, he rushed to the boy's rescue when prisoner turned round and inflicted several severe blows on him; one of them making a deep cut in the head.

Ho-akin, the little boy in question, said that prisoner gave him a cent and asked him to buy sambshow with it, he refused to do so and prisoner beat him.

Prisoner attempted to make a rambling statement but was sent back to the cells until he should sober down a bit.

Three men were found gambling in First Street, Tai-pin-shan, and on being arrested offered a P. O. 113.32 to release them, this however, he refused to do, and they were fined $5 each or in default to be imprisoned for fourteen days.

The Adullamites.

A small body of its members occupied a very prominent position and exercised an extremely weighty influence in the debates of the House of Commons in the Session of 1866. At the present moment their position is not dimin hed either in interest or importance. Whether is the Government brings in a Reform Bill or not, what this numerically insignificant group of men will say or do is a matter which closely concerns the Ministers and the country. The most striking testimony to their power is the unmeasured vituperation of which they have been the objects. The desire to disparage them is a proof of the intensity of the wish to remove the obstacle which they oppose to political progress in a certain direction. They are calumniated, reviled, and hated: they are held up to public scorn above all of them is the most stunning and the most spicy dish presented at great political banquets: they are few, and yet they are strong enough to mock all this wrath and this invective.

It is important, for many reasons, to linger a little in examining the position of these politicians. Justice has an account of debt towards them which is still unsatisfied. The seat of their defenders has not been quite equal to the fury of their assailants: they have been left to their own inherent strength. Their opponents, indeed, have been appreciated debaters, alike in the House of Commons and in the press, have fed upon their talent, have gathered statesmanship from their speeches, and political insight from their keen siftings of the great problem of Reform. But the men themselves, their relation to the House of Commons to the country, and to each other—their position as a party, if such a word is in any way applicable to them—the nature of the influence which they exert on the course of public affairs, have not received that amount of consideration which was their due. And then, their existence and their conduct singularly illustrates the working of English institutions. The power which they wield for the moment is not a chance matter. Lawless apparently and incomprehensible, on the contrary, it is the exhibition of a force which is permanent in the Constitution, and which at times of great crisis, for the welfare of the nation performs services of the highest value. Their appearance in the world of action must be studied and judged; but assuredly they must not be resented as abnormal ebullitions of personal caprice.

The most obvious and the most important fact presented by this small group of members is the absence of all organized connection amongst themselves. They seem to be intentionally associated for a common purpose; but the principle of their association lies outside of them. It is the similarity of outward circumstances only which gives them any appearance of a party. Lord Grosvenor, Mr. Lowe, Lord Elcho, Mr. Horsman, and the rest, constituents are not men who seek to overthrow a Liberal Government, or to bring in a Conservative Ministry, or to force themselves into office as a united section of the House. Had they aimed at these objects, they would have been less abused and more vigorously defended; their merit or demerit—which it ought to be called we shall see presently—consists in their political disconnection, in their inability to transfer a united body of votes to either of the great political parties. There is not a trace in their movements of any design to work together for any other purpose than the single one which gave them "a local habitation and a name." They voted, it is true, against the Reform Bill of Lord Russell's Government, and this vote told, doubtless, as a blow serviceable to the Conservative party; but it did not make them Conservatives. When their action attained success, and the Conservatives, partly through their means, came into power, it was natural to expect that some of them at least would be disposed to take office; not one of them joined the Ministry; they all to a man remained in their isolation. They stand aloof, as much as ever, from both the political parties; and it cannot be doubtful that they themselves cannot tell beforehand what will be the conduct of each one of themselves, when time will disclose whether a Reform Bill will, or will not, be laid on the table of the House of Commons next Session. They have been decried, ridiculed, and condemned; but from one charge they have been singularly free,—no one has accused them of the selfishness of seeking office.

Who, then, are these persons? What has caused them to be classed together? They have been called malcontents; and there is no reason why they should not accept the designation as an honourable distinction. All glorious revolutions and dangerous have again and again been found to be the seed-beds of liberty. The contempt poured on the despised outcast of tyranny has often had to be exchanged for the admiration enforced by successful patriotism. The fugitive David, hived to become the illustrious King of Israel. The cave of discontent is the shelter of noble thoughts. These men, then, are malcontents and Adullamites. The true question is, with what are they discontented? and how are they to be called discontented. Such a recommendation in such a case it is difficult to deal with. It is the "precious good character" which in such cases enables the criminal to attain to the position and power of committing the crime; and the abuse of that character, position, and trust, it does not add to the crime, seems to demand an addition to, instead of a mitigation of, the punishment. The recommendation is, in fact, but the honest and humane expression of the jury's commiseration of a man once occupying a position so proud and prosperous but now fallen so low, and as such it is entitled to our respect. The sentence of the Court was penal servitude for the term of five years. To such a man five years of penal servitude is an awful sentence. We may hope that it will prove a terrible warning to some other directors who, though not legally or criminally, are not less morally guilty than Mr. J. P. Wilkinson. Five years of penal servitude to a man of education and social refinement must be worse to look forward to than even the most horrible of deaths. But when we look to the amount of human suffering occasioned by the failure of such a company—to the fathers and mothers of families compelled to give up their homes and to deprive their children of the necessary education—to the poor ladies left destitute—and when we consider the sufferings of all these, who may be numbered by the thousand, with the sufferings of the one who has been the main cause of all, we cannot but feel that all he may have to endure is dwarfed into positive insignificance beside that which he has occasioned. And then we feel compelled in acquiescence in the just verdict, and the righteous judgment, and the condign punishment of the guilty.

Electioneering Bribery.

We ought to be all ashamed at the disclosures made to the Lancaster Election Commission. But we are not. We may perhaps, be amused at the frankness, if not the effrontery, of the confessions but the facts are serious notwithstanding. Lancaster is a more than respectable town. It gives name to a Palatinate, and people regard it as a bit of old gentility, smothered up by the crowd of odious upstarts that scarcely find room for themselves in Lancashire. But Lancaster evidently cares little for its historical name, and the muniments that have twined with Royalty. Out of 1,419 voters at the last election it is ascertained that two-thirds were, directly or indirectly, bribed. That the freemen, who are the majority, should sell their votes is what we expect, but ten-pound householders we hoped to be better men in a borough where we are told that not a quarter of the houses are of that rateable value. Ten-pound householders are said to be a very select class at Lancaster. Four of them, however, declined to take whatever they could get for exercising their electoral rights in favour of the generous donor. The evidence shows that more than 900 were bribed—about 780 freemen, a good proportion of whom were ten-pound householders, and 125 with only the householder's qualification. By a rough classification of the receivers of bribes it appears that two were professional men; 11 were independent, or persons of no occupation; 21 were bookkeepers, clerks, assistants, etc.; 107 were shopkeepers, 183 farmers, 21 inn and beerhouse keepers, 208 labourers, 381 artisans. The electoral district, it will be observed, contains an agricultural population. All these men received their ten or twelve pounds as a matter of course, just as they would have pocketed the dividend of a mine or a railway. A whole family of farmers had their £10 apiece, one of them a woman paying £100 a year rent, another paying £100 a year. Pen-dealers, grocers, drapers, carpenters, builders, painters, carvers, and gilders, cabinet-makers, indeed all sorts of tradesmen, took the bribe. One labourer was ill-used, for he received only £5, of which the poor fellow gave his wife a sovereign to get a new dress. There are degrees of honesty at Lancaster, and there is comfort which even there is by comparison not gentlemanly. A man received £5 to bribe an acquaintance, but finding that the latter had voted he quietly spent the money himself, and seemed to think it a good joke. The Lancastrians laughed at it, as if a little out of the way, and were rebuked by the Chief Commissioner, who called it a blackguardly act, worse than using for which men had been sent to the Castle, It is scarcely necessary to add that the probable estimate of the sum thus squandered very far exceeds the real. Little amount authenticated by the sign manual of the Returning Officer. According to the calculation vouched by him, the total expenses on both sides did not exceed £2,300, whereas it appears that near a thousand voters received an average of £10 each, besides other expenses. We should not be far wrong if we put the total cost of the Lancaster Election at eleven or twelve thousand pounds—no trifling addition to the resources of a genteel old borough with no trade in particular and a declining population. By all means let this question of bribery be fully and fairly gone into. That a number of well-to-do farmers and shopkeepers should quietly pocket £10 notes for a thing according to their consciences, or against it, as may be, is portentous and significant. The act is at least vastly more disgraceful in them than in working men. If, too, the former take bribes, how is it possible that the latter should refuse to take them, for the men are not likely to think it wrong when their employers set the example? We have already observed, however, that people do not seem at all surprised to hear of the classes supposed to be better off taking such bribes. Small tradesmen and small farmers are quite as much in want of money as the men they employ, and, being more familiar with the sight and uses of a £10-note, have a keener and more practical relish for it. A note of that value is rather beyond the mental ordinary of most working men. To them it is a curiosity, like a medallion or a gem. They don't feel the want of it, just as they don't feel the want of a mansion or a carriage and pair. They take it when offered, as they would take almost anything, from an elephant downwards. But a £10 note happens to be just the very thing that an ambitious carpenter, a speculative builder, a farmer paying a high rent for a farm in bad condition and ill stocked, as well as many another man is always thinking of and hankering after. Had he but that £10 note in his pocket which he spent the other day, or which he has promised to pay to-morrow, or which would just enable him to make some little purchase! Then, as all his lawful profits have their appointed use, generally of a purely business character, what he wants is a small round sum to throw away in a few agreeable trifles. Then it must be confessed there are very few people indeed who do not think politics an affair of common interest and mutual aid. Electors feel they help a man to rise, and they expect a lift in return. Some want notice, some places, some jobs, some employment, some customs; some—and these are the easiest to deal with—will allow their calling to be assessed at a money value, and will take a sovereign, or a £10-note, as the market may be. But we are disposed to think that these farmers and shopkeepers, after all, were corrupted by the example of the freemen, and that they went after the multitude to do evil. The borough of Lancaster has a thousand freemen, though the electors with no qualification but their £10 occupation number only 467. Of the working men calculated to be on the register, 6-8 are there as freemen, while only 57 are there as £10 occupiers. The freemen of Lancaster, then, are of all classes, though three fifths of them are workmen and labourers. But a "freedom" of this sort, independent of any other qualification, always has been regarded as a share in a profitable estate. It never was possible to persuade a freeman he had no right to his "regulars." So, wherever the "free tenure" goes, bribery goes too, and spreads the contagion from one class to another. It would seem here to have been all but universal. At the investigation the amusing frankness shown by the witness is accounted for by the fact that everybody was bribed, and that, therefore, everybody was as good as his neighbour. There seems to be no public opinion at Lancaster, and it is impossible that many of the more decent minority who did not take bank-notes expected their consideration in other forms. The poor old borough lies, like Lazarus at the gate of Dives, but, unfortunately, is incapable of some disreputable secrets, and is therefore rewarded with something better than crumbs from the rich man's table.—Times.

RUSSIA AND POLAND.—The policy which the Czar is about to pursue in Poland will not immediately reconcile uneasiness to those who have witnessed with mingled feelings of alarm and surprise the sweeping political changes which have taken place in Central Europe during the past two years. It is needless to say that but a very short time since a similar course of action on the part of the Russian Government would have, in all likelihood, elicited remonstrances from the Western Powers. The events, however, of last year have proved that a great deal may be done in the way of tearing up treaties and breaking pledges without provoking a rupture with those most interested in seeing those treaties respected and those pledges observed. Prussia, a great Protestant Power, heretofore the champion of Liberalism and of Liberal institutions in Germany, has to all appearance exchanged constitutional Government for despotism. In the conduct of her international negotiations she has accepted the maxim that might constitutes right, and, whatever she has been enabled to conquer, she equally considers she is entitled to appropriate. Europe at her territory was before, it has become more than doubled by her identification with Northern Germany, and from being simply a military Power she has acquired the means of being a great maritime one. When, however, to these territorial changes are added those of a political nature to which we have just referred, the lover of Liberal institutions must confess that the ravages made by despotism in a considerable portion of the European continent during the past twelve months have been extensive. If with Count Bismarck's success be coupled the assimilation of Polish to Russian institutions, it may come to pass that ere long one may search in vain for any evidence of Liberal Government in Europe eastward of the Rhine.—Post.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Hongkong, Saturday Evening.

The business of the past week foots up only a small total, being less in amount than for any previous corresponding period since the opening of the year. Trade would appear to have been quite at a stand still and although there has been a fair inquiry for all descriptions of goods the low offers made by dealers and the firmness of importers together with the disposition that has been manifested by them to retain their goods rather than submit to reduction in price, has perhaps contributed much to lessen the amount of business that has been in progress.

The opium market has been rather quiet dealers showing a disposition to await the arrival of the next sales steamers now nearly due before entering. The closing quotations are Now Patna $637½ old and $620 Benares $612½ Malwa and Persian are quite nominal at $700 and $675 respectively. The stock of Benares on account the fair this drug has had lately is quite exhausted. Late telegrams from Calcutta report that the shipments likely to come forward from the second sales include 1500 chests Benares, 600 new Patna —and 3000 chests old Patna. The last Bombay rates were Rs. 1700, and 1100 chests were reported coming by the English mail due here about the 10th. Cotton continues in very good request and considerable quantities have changed hands. The sales reported to-day embrace 1573 bales Bengal at $16.75 to $20.25 and 700 bales Shanghai at $21.26. The sales of Piece Goods are confined to 1500 pieces English Blue Drills at $3.80, 500 pieces Turkey Red Shirtings at $3.75, 200 pieces Plain Orleans at $6.60 and 600 dozen Scarlet Handkerchiefs at $1.20.

The produce markets show little alteration. Transactions to-day embrace 10,100 piculs Saigon Rice at $2.05 to $2.10, 1,000 50lb. bags Flour $1.86, 1,000 piculs Green Peas at $2.26 and 100 piculs Red Dates at $2.00.
